WHITE HOUSE JOBS SUMMIT

December 9, 2009

President Obama delivered closing remarks at a White House forum on jobs and economic growth. He talked about breakout sessions he had attended on infrastructure and clean energy. Following his remarks he asked members of the audience to talk about ideas discussed in the sessions they attended.

Leading CEOs, small business owners, labor leaders, nonprofit heads and thinkers talked about ideas for continuing to grow the economy and put Americans back to work. Following the opening session, senior administration officials held discussions on job creation and expanding the economy.
